U. S. STAYS IDE PAT WILSON COASTERS WITH ALLIES GERMANY DEFANT

WEEKS IS SCORED AS BETRAYER

Senator Denounced by Former Governor Walsh at Democratic Convention

Worcester, Oct. 23.—Charges that Senator John W. Weeks had obstructed war legislation, embarrassed President Wilson and betrayed the people of the Commonwealth by seeking to increase the price of wheat and lower the war risk insurance of soldiers, and by opposing the free vocational education of those crippled by war, were launched today by Ex-Governor David I. Walsh at the Democratic State convention, which opened here today.

ARMISTICE IS FAR OFF, SAYS VON HINDENBURG

Zurich, Oct. 23.—Soldiers talk too much; an armistice is still far off, said Field Marshal Hindenburg, the German chief of staff, in an order of the day to the German army. It continued:

"You are still the rampart of the Fatherland on enemy soil and in Alsace Lorraine."

BALFOUR SAYS END OF WAR IS NOT IN SIGHT

London, Oct. 23.—Under no circumstances should Germany's former colonies be returned to her, declared Foreign Secretary A. J. Balfour, at a luncheon given in honor of British allies here today. "The end of the conflict is not yet in sight," continued the foreign secretary. "It is not right to suppose that the enemy is crumbling to pieces, but we have entered a phase that insures us we shall enjoy the fruits of victory."

WINTER QUARTERS SOUGHT FOR 2,500 NAVAL MEN

An annex to the Roosevelt ship at Commonwealth Pier is being sought for the 2,500 men, now stationed at Camp Eder, Framingham. These men must soon go into winter quarters. Commonwealth Pier is too crowded.

LEUT. JOSEPH E. WEHNER, former Everett High School football player, reported missing after battle with German airmen.

By HENRY G. WALES.

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 22 (Delayed).—Lieutenant Joseph E. Wehner of Everett, Mass., who was credited with ten air victories, has been shot down, but it is not definitely known whether he was killed or made a prisoner.

Wehner was a fighting partner of Frank Lake of Phoenix, Ariz. They had just shot down a German balloon near Chamblay when five Fokkers which had been hovering above dove down to the attack. Lake averted his comrades the same afternoon by shooting down a Fokker.

Ten German airplanes and balloons had fallen victim to Wehner before he himself was brought down. He and Lake in their fighting had performed a surprise method of firing balloons which was considered even more hazardous than attacking hostile airplanes, since the gas bags were well protected by high angle guns that had all the space around them registered.

YANKS GO ON GROUND MEUSE

By BERT FORD, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army Northwest of Verdun, Oct. 23 (Noon).—American patrols entered Brielle late yesterday and reported that the Germans had burned and evacuated the town. (Brielle is on the Meuse River, fourteen miles northwest of Verdun.) The Germans have been forced to evacuate Hill No. 251, an important stronghold. Brielle is being heavily shelled by Dutch artillery.

"The Americans have 'mopped up' Hill No. 257 and Hill No. 259 and have cleared out the Bois de Foret, gaining ground to the eastward."

GERMANS REINFORCED

Our line has been carried from Mar. Havast trench system along the eastern edge of the Bois de Foret, passing the northern tip of the Bois de Foret and Lac de Poret within half a kilometer of Brielle. (A kilometer is three-fifths of a mile.)

German troops are being massed in the region of Basseville and Amelleville against the Americans. Numerous grenades were used today. During a German air raid early yesterday huge bombs fell near an American hospital far behind the lines and fragments of the bursting projectiles penetrated the buildings. The wounded were hastily removed to dug-outs.

CIVILIANS BOMBED

German planes also bombed a city full of civilians in the rear of the American front and a number of non-combatants were wounded. This was a very quiet day on the American front. There was comparatively little artillery firing and no infantry actions of any importance.

Eighty per cent. of the Americans wounded in the present offensive were only slightly injured with rifle and machine gun bullets, and a large number of them will be able to return to the firing line within a month. Some will be back fighting within two weeks. The Germans were more heavily wounded than the Americans owing to the severity of our artillery fire.

An American infantry captain who lay seriously wounded in No. 251's Land for five days without food or drink and was supposed to be dead, was to be dead, was rescued in a shell hole today.

He was hit by other Yankee shells, captured Rabin-Aux-Pierres. The American effort was rushed to a hospital where it was said he has a good chance for recovery. His name was not made known.

Vatican Appeals to Germany to Halt Destruction

By International News Service, Rome, Oct. 23.—The Vatican has appealed to Chancellor Maer of Germany to prevent the German army from destroying any more "prison" of British communities "except in cases of obvious military necessity" and a favorable reply has been received, according to information secured here today.

It is learned the Vatican takes attitude that as the German army has already burned or destroyed many French and Belgian towns this should be compelled to evacuate.

90-CENT GAS IS NOW $1 UNDER SLIDING SCALE

Petition Granted to Regulate Dividends; Consumer Not Hit at Present

The Board of Gas and Electric Light Commissioners today granted the petition of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company that the standard price of gas be fixed under the sliding scale by increased from ninety cents to a dollar per thousand cubic feet.

This action does not mean, necessarily, that the price of gas will be increased. It is specifically provided by the commission that the consumer shall not continue in effect after the year nor more than one year from today.

The standard price is merely the basis from which dividends to be paid by the company are regulated. When the price charged to the consumer is reduced below the standard price the company is permitted to increase dividends in proportion to the cause of the great increase in the cost of producing gas, due to war conditions. The company contended that the standard price as fixed by law did not bear the same relation to the cost of doing business that it did when it was established.

The commission states in its decision that the act of legislature, which declares its intention that the company should not be paid more than a seven per cent. dividend, and an amply dividend cannot be paid unless the standard price is allowed the increase.

NEW DRIVE STARTED BY HAG

By FRANK CHARLTON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

A new attack was launched by the British today over a seven-mile front east and southeast of Cambrai, and satisfactory progress was reported by Field Marshal Haig.

The assault centered in the sectors of Le Cateau and Soissons, where the British are evidently seeking to a northwesterly direction in outflank the German forces standing between Valenciennes and the Belgian frontier.

The British have entered Valenciennes, the great German position on the Scheldt River, and despite increased resistance have not further gains north of Valenciennes in the direction of Tournai.

Germans Are Retiring Near Napoleon's Waterloo

The German army is reported to be retiring in the region of Waterloo, near Napoleon's last decisive defeat on June 18, 1815. Waterloo is nine miles from Brussels, and, according to press dispatches, the Germans have begun a retrograde movement in that zone. The field of Waterloo is marked by a great monument, surmounted with an iron lion.

Closing of Dardanelles.

The line had come when Germany needed the Turkish army, and the onward sign that the situation had changed was the closing of the Dardanelles. Thus Wangenheim had accomplished the task for which he had been working, and in this act had fittingly crowned his achievement of bringing in the Goeben and the Breslau. Few Americans realize, even today, what an overwhelming influence this act wielded upon future military operations. Yet the fact that the war has lasted for so many years is explained by this closing of the Dardanelles.

This was the narrow gate through which the German products of 175,000,000 people reached Europe, and since the war had been a single human life or the firing of a single gun, yet in a twinkling, Germany accomplished this suddenly closing it, Germany de-

'NO PEACE' PRESIDENT VIOLENCE, MAY NOT SAYS MAX REPLY

Ready for Defence of Fatherland, Chancellor Declares in Reichstag

London, Oct. 23.—Warning to the allies that Germany will fight against any "peace by violence" was given by Prince Maximilian of Baden, the German Chancellor, in his speech before the Reichstag explaining the recent note of the German government to President Wilson.

If President Wilson refused to grant the peace terms which he sought, the German government and the German people must determine upon violence of the Fatherland, and he believed this would.

The chief portion of the speech of the Chancellor was devoted to presenting the Reichstag members and the people of Germany generally that satisfaction in President Wilson's terms would not be the relaxation of Germany's claims to an anti-German decision.

"The nation will be at perpetual peril," he said. "It will not be our strength that will decide, just it will be what is thought to be right in free discussion with our opponents, that will give the decision. This is a great offer for a proud people, accustomed to victory."

The local questions involved will not stop of our national boundaries, continued on Page 2, Column 1.

NEW BRITISH DRIVE AIMS TO FORCE FOE OUT OF NORTHERN FRANCE

Germans Reported Preparing to Evacuate Brussels, and Retire to Namur Line

North of Tournai the Scheldt has been crossed in the winter of 1914. Allied troops in Belgium are still beating back the forward and the Belgians, advancing in the direction of Ghent, have passed the Ley Canal. It is reported that the Germans are getting ready to retire from the Brussels line, and are observers report long trains of transport en route to Namur, southwest of Brussels. American troops are standing just south of the axis of the new British attack, but machine gun and tank units were not accompanied by the British War Office.

There are growing indications that another American attack is imminent against the German left flank. This new drive may fall in one of three areas:

- 1.—The Argonne-Nancy sector.
- 2.—In the Meuse district west of Metz.

The Germans are planning a retirement of 30 kilometers (18 1/2 miles) in the Brussels region, and are reported to have begun stripping the city of all useful materials, according to information received today.

A continuous line of transport has been seen moving in the direction of Namur. Roads and bridges far east of Tournai have been mined. Trains were held and towns cleaned of their supplies. Light railway lines have been removed and the main line roads are covered with trains.

All moving machinery was removed by the Germans from Lille and other manufacturing cities.

Even the churches were mined by the Germans in Tournai and surrounding areas. All war materials and hospitals in Brussels are being moved back into Germany.

London, Oct. 21.—French forces operating in Belgium have reached the Danube River of Tom Palanka, cutting Austria's only direct line of communication with Turkey and the grain ports of South Russia. A convoy of barges loaded with foodstuffs was captured by the French.

Big Gun Duel on Oise River; New Gains Made by the French Troops

Paris, Oct. 21.—French troops standing on the Oise River have advanced between Nijmegen and Combray. The War Office announced today. The Germans are desperately resisting the French passage of the river. So far this month the first French army has captured 70 machine guns and 100 trench mortars. The communiqué follows:

"There was heavy artillery duelling on the Oise River front during the night."

"On the Oise River the enemy is blowing up efforts to cross with violent machine-gun fire."

The French secured ground between Nijmegen and Combray. "So far this month the first army has taken 81 cannon, 100 trench mortars and over 70 machine guns. Much material was captured also."

British in New Drive Gain Ground East of Cambrai and Le Cateau

London, Oct. 21.—A new assault was begun by the British early today on the front east and southeast of Cambrai and good progress was made, the War Office announced. The attack centred between Le Cateau and Soissons.

Soissons is 11 1/2 miles east of Cambrai and Le Cateau is 6 1/2 miles south of Soissons.

The British have reached the western bank of the Scheldt River between Valenciennes and Tournai, and a route, but considerable resistance was encountered.

The text of the War Office report reads: "At an early hour this morning we attacked on the Le Cateau-Soissons front and are making good progress."

Further north, between Valenciennes and Tournai, we have taken Bruxy.

"British forces reached the west bank of the Scheldt at Bieharies and Espin."

"Considerable resistance was encountered on this front yesterday, and sharp fighting took place, in which our troops pressed the enemy back vigorously and inflicted many casualties."

"We drove the enemy from his positions and captured a number of prisoners."

"But what have you been doing, Nell? How the dickens could you save $50 when everything has gone up in price, the way it has?"

"Well, for one thing, I've stopped baking bread at home. It costs less to buy Mrs. Walker's Prize Bread, and I've got a lot more time since I quit baking."

"And believe me, Jack, a woman's time is valuable nowadays. I thought I had to buy a lot of winter underwear for you, for instance, Jack—and when you find all my patches, please don't kick. You see I saved several dollars, just because I had time enough to make them last for another winter."

It was one of the most dramatic military triumphs of the war, and it was all the work of German propaganda, German penetration and German diplomacy. . . . And for an accurate idea of what this meant, from a military standpoint, we only need to call to mind the Russian battlefront in the next year. There the peasants were fighting German artillery with their unprotected bodies, having few rifles and few heavy guns, while mountains of useless ammunition were piling up in their distant Arctic and Pacific ports, with no railroads to take them to the field of action.—From Morgenthau's story.

BOSTON CAPTIVATIONS.

Another question, which had been under discussion for several months, was because involved in the Turkish international situation. That was the matter of the capitulations. These were the treaty rights which for centuries had regulated the position of foreigners in the Turkish Empire. Turkey had never been admitted to a complete equality with European nations, and in reality she had never been an independent sovereignty. The Sultan's law and customs differed so radically from those of Europe and America that no non-Muslim country could think of submitting its citizens in Turkey to them. In many matters, therefore, the rights of ex-territoriality had always prevailed in favor of all citizens of subjects of countries enjoying capitulatory rights. Almost all European countries, as well as the United States, for centuries had enjoyed these consular courts and prisons. In Turkey they tried and punished those which their national committed in Turkey.

We all had our schools, which were subject not to Turkish law and jurisdiction, but to that of the country which maintained them. Thus Robert College and the Constantinian College for Women, those wonderful institutions which American philanthropy has erected in the Bosphorus, as well as hundreds of American religious, charitable and educational institutions, practically stood on American soil. They were looked upon as American property and their own authorities, as they did not care to submit to the Ottoman special service. Turkey likewise was not permitted to levy taxes on foreign property. It could not increase its own customs taxes without the consent of the foreign powers.

Closing of Dardanelles Big Diplomatic Triumph

THE closing of the Dardanelles did not cost a single human life nor the firing of a single gun, yet, in a twinkling, Germany accomplished what probably 3,000,000 men, opposed to a well-equipped Russian force, could not have brought to pass. It was one of the most dramatic military triumphs of the war, and it was all the work of German propaganda, German penetration and German diplomacy. . . . And for an accurate idea of what this meant, from a military standpoint, we only need to call to mind the Russian battlefront in the next year. was filled with reports that Turkey intended to abrogate the capitulations. Rumors said that Germany had concluded, as part of the consideration for Turkish aid in the war, that she would give up the capitulations. As part of her payment for Turkish neutrality, Turkey had agreed to give up the capitulations. What was manifest, however, was the point which the more suggestive of abrogation produced on the Turkish mind, which were the talks of coming subject to the Turkish laws and customs, which were the talks of the town.

About this time I had a long conversation with an expert, was Turkey was living with its imperial burden as a rule that demanded more than the Turkish people could bear. In other words, Turkey was giving evidence of great and increasing weakness, and I had heard much of its investments in the Balkans, which were the talks of the town.

GOLD STARS TO HONOR GRIP NURSES

A suggestion that a gold star be placed in the service flag for every nurse who died from influenza while attending patients during the epidemic in the American Red Cross, Bureau of Nursing, New England division, in a letter of appreciation of the work of nurses during that period.

"We feel that every nurse that died in this service should have a gold star placed in the service flag, for the country died in the service of her country," she declared.

The letter followed: "The Division Director of the Red Cross of New England, I should like to state how much the Red Cross appreciated the epidemic of influenza during that period. The Red Cross also owes a great debt of gratitude to the women who came to the front to assist the nursing of hundreds of women all over New England, those who had taken the home nursing course and others who had no training, volunteered and did splendid work, wherever they were sent."

SAVES WOUNDED MEDFORD LAD FROM BOCHES

Gillbody Tells How Lieutenant Forces Germans to Carry Price Back to Lines

A brief but interesting letter has been received at the Boston AMERICAN office from Sergeant Major George F. Gillbody of the 104th Infantry, a dispatch youth, formerly a reporter on the AMERICAN staff. Gillbody tells how Lieutenant Harry B. Price, of the 104th Infantry, saved the life of a young American soldier who was wounded in the line, and how Price, in the process of saving the soldier, was himself wounded and made them carry the wounded corporal back to the rear.

The incident, which is being told in one of the closing paragraphs of Gillbody's letter, as follows:

"We are still some ways from the Boche's neck and, while we have been here a while, without a day's permission of leave and with nothing but food, rest, and our courage and nerve are nevertheless at their height and we are ready for any further service required of us."

Captain Price was formerly a private in E Company of the 104th Infantry, but he was promoted to lieutenant and then to the position of sergeant major of the 104th Infantry.

He was captured about four months ago, but returned to the front after a brief hospital stay. The first of this week his relatives here received a letter from him, saying that he had been wounded in the leg and was in a base hospital.

Sergeant Major Gillbody, with immediate thoughtfulness, wrote to Price's brother-in-law, who is on the AMERICAN staff, under date of September 22.

PRICE IS PRISONER.

Gillbody's letter, designed to relieve any undue home anxiety about Price, in case his name appeared in the list of wounded, reads in part:

"I am dropping you a hurried line about young Price. He is not a prisoner, as you are undoubtedly aware, as we figured most prominently in the trip on the St. Michel, and, considering more than a lion's share toward the first real, active military achievement of the United States in the war."

"On the afternoon of September 12, while advancing with the batteries in advance for telephone lines with the rear, young Price, in company with his platoon, officers (Lieutenant

London, Oct. 22.—The only way to stop the present war, in the opinion of Paul Painleve, former French premier, is to convince Germany, from the highest to the lowest person, that she is irretrievably defeated.

The former premier cited the three government press statements which were made public last week, and which indicated the displacement of France and the seizure of the German press propaganda.

In the same Reichstag which formally admitted to the German people the German press propaganda, Painleve said that the German people should be regarded as representatives of the German people, and that the German people should be regarded as representatives of the German people.

"The German people," he said, "are not yet ready to see the light of the military front collapsed. The German people are not yet ready to see the light of the military front collapsed. The German people are not yet ready to see the light of the military front collapsed."

Price was wounded in the leg and was in a base hospital. He was captured about four months ago, but returned to the front after a brief hospital stay. The first of this week his relatives here received a letter from him, saying that he had been wounded in the leg and was in a base hospital.

Sergeant Major Gillbody, with immediate thoughtfulness, wrote to Price's brother-in-law, who is on the AMERICAN staff, under date of September 22.

PRICE IS PRISONER.

Gillbody's letter, designed to relieve any undue home anxiety about Price, in case his name appeared in the list of wounded, reads in part:

"I am dropping you a hurried line about young Price. He is not a prisoner, as you are undoubtedly aware, as we figured most prominently in the trip on the St. Michel, and, considering more than a lion's share toward the first real, active military achievement of the United States in the war."

RESINOL ENDS YEARS OF UNSIGHTLY SKIN TROUBLE
Q. A. "My face and neck broke out in pimples which swelled and itched until they were like boils. When I opened them they bled and I could not get any sleep. I had to give up my work and could not go anywhere. After five years of this trouble, and after using many other preparations, Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap cured me. The pain and itching was relieved at once, and when I had used a little more and Resinol Soap I was cured. (Signed) Fred H. Jones, 10 East 3rd St., Boston."

MY Piano Selling Policy has saved thousands of dollars for the Piano-Buying Public. I don't want you to regard me as a booster or a man who makes extravagant statements that he cannot back up. I am earnestly striving for the good opinion and friendship of the public and I want you to believe me when I make statements about the amount of money I can save you on the purchase of a piano. It is a simple matter for you to come out here and look the pianos over. If I have the piano you want at a price that is $100 less than you have been asked for it elsewhere, why not buy it from me? My guarantee goes with every purchase—Money back if not as represented. How many other houses are so fair? Let me tell you something. $100 saved on a piano is not advertising talk. It is the logical result of business economy. I do a big business, make big purchases, big sales, and I MUST make big savings for the people or I cannot do a big business. Perfectly plain and simple—isn't it?

The Rules of the Council of National Defence on Early Christmas Buying

What retailers must do What the public should do

YOU as patriotic men and women eager to do whatever is needful to help win the war are urged to co-operate with the retail stores of Boston in carrying out these four rules established by the Council of National Defence at Washington:

- 1 Number of employees is not to be increased above the yearly average, nor store hours lengthened beyond the normal.
- 2—The public to be urged to buy only useful gifts (except for young children).
- 3—The public to be urged to buy Christmas gifts during October and November.
- 4 Deliveries to be restricted, and the public urged to carry packages wherever possible.

What does this mean to the stores?
It means that thousands of additional sales people secured in past years to take care of late Christmas buying cannot be hired this year. It means that regular forces, working during regular, not lengthened, hours, must handle all Christmas selling and deliveries.

What does this mean to you, the public? It means

- 1—That you should buy all Christmas gifts as early as possible—in October, if you can; if not, in November; the earlier the better.
- 2—That you should buy as early in the day as possible.
- 3—That you should buy only useful gifts (except for young children).
- 4—That you should carry your own packages wherever possible, and not expect too prompt deliveries in other cases.

Retailers are already obligated to carry out the Council's rules—made to release labor and transportation for war tasks. But whether the early Christmas buying movement is successful depends largely on YOU.

There is nothing to be gained by waiting. There is everything to be gained by buying now.

Will you co-operate with the Council of National Defence and the stores of Boston? The need is VITAL!

How the People May Amend Their Constitution

Third Article Explaining the Working of the Initiative and Referendum Plan of the Convention

In two recent articles the AMERICAN has traced the steps by which, if the Initiative and Referendum amendment recommended by the Constitutional Convention is ratified at the State election, it will hereafter be possible for the people to enact a good law that the Legislature has persistently rejected and to reject a bad law that the Legislature has passed. It remains to be shown how the people will also be able, when necessary, to AMEND THEIR CONSTITUTION TO CONFORM TO THE DELIBERATE PURPOSE OF THE MAJORITY OF THE VOTERS.

By a strange oversight, the original framers of the Constitution omitted to provide ANY method of amending the Constitution from time to time as the need of additions or alterations might arise, though provision was made for one general revision in 1795 if the voters should then desire it, which the majority at that time did not. Accordingly, no amendments whatever were made for forty years, until in 1820 the Legislature, without any constitutional warrant except the general statement in the Bill of Rights that "THE PEOPLE ALONE HAVE AN INALIENABLE RIGHT" - - - TO REFORM, ALTER OR TOTALLY CHANGE THEIR GOVERNMENT when their protection, safety, prosperity and happiness require it," called a Constitutional Convention which submitted to the people fourteen amendments, of which nine were ratified by the voters. The Ninth Amendment, which is still in force, provides a method by which the people may "reform or alter" the Constitution, BUT ONLY WHEN ADVISED TO DO SO BY A TWO-THIRDS VOTE OF THE HOUSE AND A MAJORITY VOTE OF THE SENATE TWO YEARS IN SUCCESSION. THERE IS STILL NO METHOD WHATSOEVER BY WHICH THE MAJORITY CAN AMEND THE CONSTITUTION SO LONG AS THERE IS A MINORITY STRONG ENOUGH TO CONTROL ONE YEAR OUT OF TWO, TWENTY VOTES IN THE SENATE OR SEVENTY-FIVE OR EIGHTY IN THE HOUSE.

It was to take away this inadvertently granted power of an influential minority to block reforms of the Constitution desired by a majority of the voters that the Constitutional Convention, after a stirring debate, included in the Initiative and Referendum plan recommended to the voters the following method of submitting proposed changes of the Constitution to the people without requiring these two-thirds and majority votes in the Legislature - BUT NOT WITHOUT GIVING THE LEGISLATURE AN AMPLE OPPORTUNITY TO DISCUSS THE AMENDMENTS AND to arouse public sentiment against them if it so desires:

1-As in the case of a proposed law, ten original petitioners may draft a proposed amendment to the Constitution and submit it to the Attorney-General, who, if he finds that it contemplates ONE CHANGE ONLY, and that it DOES NOT TOUCH RELIGION or religious institutions, the JUDGES or the COURTS, the FUNDAMENTAL INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS GUARANTEED BY THE BILL OF RIGHTS, or THE SO-CALLED ANTI-SECTARIAN AMENDMENT adopted last year, will so certify to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, who will prepare the blank petitions with the form of the question as it will appear on the ballots and the names and residences of the ten original petitioners.

2-Additional signatures of qualified voters TO THE NUMBER OF 25,000 must be obtained and filed with the Secretary not later than the first Wednesday of December, whereupon he will transmit the petition to the incoming Legislature.

3-A legislative committee will give hearings on the petition and reports its recommendations, with the reasons therefor, back to the Legislature.

4-The Legislature will consider the proposed amendment in joint session, and may amend the form of it by a three-fourths vote, or if not so amended must pass upon it as originally drawn. IF IT IS VOTED FOR BY SEVENTY OR MORE MEMBERS OF THE JOINT SESSION it will be referred to the next Legislature, just as it would be under the present plan if it received a two-thirds vote in the House and a majority vote in the Senate, sitting separately.

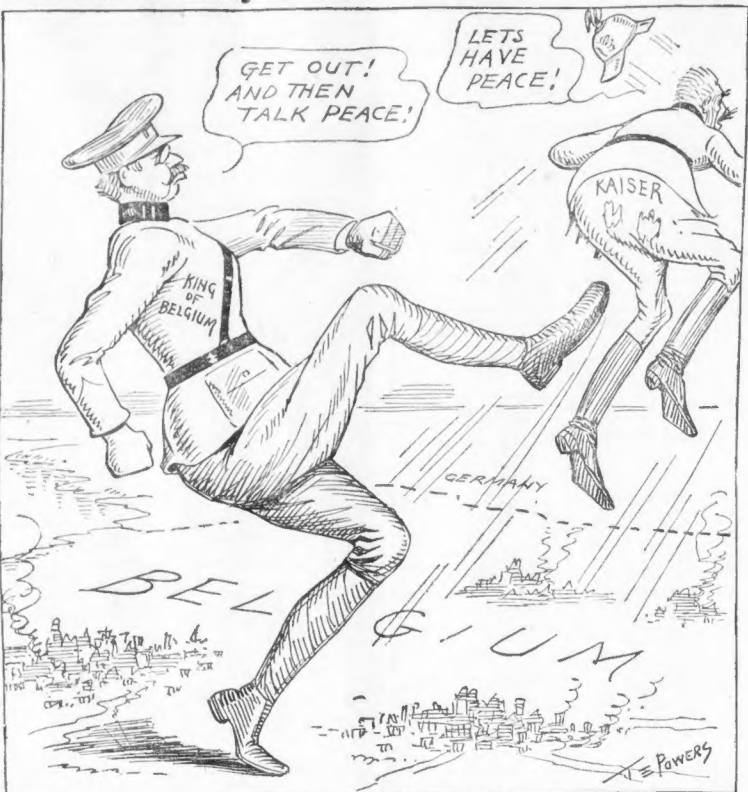

5-The joint session BY MAJORITY VOTE (or the two branches by a majority vote in each) MAY PROPOSE A SUBSTITUTE AMENDMENT to be submitted to the people as an alternative for the initiated measure.

6-The initiated amendment, together with the legislative substitute, if any, will be CONSIDERED AGAIN BY THE NEXT LEGISLATURE in joint session, and if either or both of them again receive not less than seventy favoring votes it or they will be placed on the ballot and voted upon at the State election.

Thus, in order to amend the Constitution by using the Initiative and Referendum, it will be necessary for the proposed amendment, after securing the signatures of 25,000 qualified voters (not more than a fourth of whom can be residents of any one county), TO RUN THE GAUNTLET OF TWO SUCCESSIVE LEGISLATURES, WINNING THE SUPPORT OF AT LEAST SEVENTY MEMBERS IN EACH, AND AFTER TWO YEARS OF PUBLICITY be ratified by a majority of the voters equal to not less than 30 per cent. of all the ballots cast at the election.

By this method it will be VASTLY HARDER THAN AT PRESENT to change the Constitution by a snap judgment of an influential minority. IT WILL ALSO BE IMPOSSIBLE FOR A SELFISH MINORITY ANY LONGER TO BLOCK CONSTITUTIONAL REFORMS WHICH THE MAJORITY BELIEVE IN AND DESIRE. THIS IS ANOTHER CONTROLLING REASON WHY THE EMPLOYERS OF THE CORPORATION LOBBY ARE SPENDING THEIR MONEY LAVISHLY TO PREVENT THE RATIFICATION OF THE INITIATIVE AND REFERENDUM AMENDMENT.

Not the Way He Came In - By T. E. Powers

The Greatest Warrior

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

(The following verses were written by Ella Wheeler Wilcox on the International marriage in Tours, France, of Mlle. Jeanne Bouviere to Captain Edwin Kavanagh of the American E. F.)

THE greatest warrior in the world
Is Cupid with his lance;

He stands upon Columbia's shores
And hurks it into France.

It pierces through two hearts at once
And binds them with its power.

And every blood drop from their wounds
Becomes an orange flower.

Then Cupid speeds to Heaven's gate
And rings a golden bell;

To Washington and Lafayette
He has a tale to tell.

Those lofty spirits, smiling, say:
"Your work our praise commands,

Another link of love is formed
Between our glorious lands."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

A Protest

Editor Boston AMERICAN:
There must be no ten-cent fare on the Bay State or on any other City Line Street Railway in Massachusetts.

A ten-cent car fare in Lynn means a two-hundred-dollar-a-year cut in the wages of every working person of family, and with no improvement of service—judging only in dire necessity. It means that working people now going home to enjoy a warm lunch at noontime will be compelled to eat a cold lunch in some corner in order to save car fare—it means that women folk and others will come downtown only on half an hour's notice, and the other downtown attractions will suffer from this.

People living within a mile and a half from the downtown district will walk or patronize the jitneys, and street car riding will be like ambulance riding—used only in dire necessity. And you, Mr. Employer of working people, may escape, for the time being, making good this ten-cent car fare—a two-hundred-dollar-a-year cut-in-wages, but eventually you must pay it all, as the wage-earners can't stand it.

Four years ago, Public Utility Commission told our Public Service Commission that the Bay State did not need any operating expert—who they really should have was a sheriff's sale of the entire property at its scrap value. It looks as if the day of this sale is coming near, and his statement was prophetic.

SOME BAY STATE SALARIES:
President $25,000 a year
First Vice-President, 15,000 a year
General Manager, 15,000 a year
Treasurer, 15,000 a year
Power Superintendent, 6,000 a year
And the tired strap-hanger must pay ten cents or walk.

The banker who is now receiver of the Bay State property is one of the same family—the same household—who were in on the ground floor to get-rich-quick in the original Massachusetts Electric stock jobbing scheme. They tricked stockholders and never were and never will be successful operators of a public utility, because they do not and it could seem never can understand that they had obtained a monopoly, which "they profit most who serve best." They believed that because they had obtained a monopoly, that has been made practically perpetual by corrupt legislation, that the people would be compelled to patronize them, no matter how miserable the service, how incompetent the management, or how outrageous the rate of fare.

They utterly failed to see that it is not a question of the rate of fare at all—that is merely incidental. In order for any business to be successful, the customer must perform the greatest possible service to customers, and under conditions that will increase the popularity of the thing sold, and at a price fair enough to confine the customers that they are receiving fair value and a little bit more—for what they pay.

The Bay State Street Railway has never in all its history operated along these lines—and no rate of fare will help them until they understand that satisfied customers are the upholders of all successful institutions—banks, stores, etc. They Profit Most Who Serve Best.

HARRY BEAUMONT.
MOTION PICTURE director.
MY DEAR Mr. Beaumont,
A FEW days ago,
I SAW a picture,
CALLED "THIRTY A Week,"
And I happened to notice,
WHEN the picture started,
THAT the director's name
WAS HARRY Beaumont.
AND AS I sat there,
AND WATCHED the picture,
I GREW to wondering,
WHAT SORT of a man
HARRY BEAUMONT might be.
AND WHEN the picture was through,
I WAS quite sure,
IF I ever met him,
I would like him.
AND the reason is,
THAT FOR years and years,
I'VE BEEN a patron.
OF MOTION PICTURES,
BECAUSE OF the weeklies,
AND BECAUSE of the movies,
AND BECAUSE of the films,
THAT BRING us scenes,
OF FARAWAY lands,
AND ONCE in a while,
In a very long while,
I'VE ENJOYED the feature,
THEY HAVE on the bill,
AND I'VE liked the Drows,
AND THE O. Henry things,
BECAUSE they were clean,
AND I'VE liked Bill Hart,
BECAUSE of the bills,
AND THE mountain slides,
AND the stretches of land,
WHERE ONE could breathe,
AND DRAW it in deep,
AND SOME other folk.

HOW TO MAKE BIRTHDAYS OF REAL VALUE

By Winifred Black

SWEET SIXTEEN is going to have a birthday and she's done such a nice thing with it! About two months ago she asked her mother how much Mother was going to spend for a birthday party, and Mother, who takes aback by this rather mercenary question, told her, "Then," said Sweet Sixteen, "I'll spend it—let me have it. I have a use for it." And then—the whole story came out.

Sweet Sixteen had a plan—a perfectly darling plan, too lovely for anything—she could hardly wait to carry it out. She took the money her mother gave her and went downtown and bought some cigarettes and some tobacco, and some pins and some little picture cards, and a few trinkets like that. These she did up in separate parcels and sent them over to France to a Y. M. C. A. but she knew.

She wrote a letter to the woman in charge of the hut and said: "My birthday came the 13th of November. Will you please give a birthday present to every boy who was born on the same day that I was? Here are the presents. Will you please keep them and give them out on my birthday?"

With each present she wrote a little note—nothing silly or sentimental, but just a nice, fresh, friendly, enthusiastic note, full of pride in her country and interest in those who were fighting for it.

She told the boys she was only sixteen and that she had a brother who would have been in the war if he hadn't died a year ago, and that she wanted to send these little presents to the boys born on the same day as she was. And she wished them good luck and she said quite simply at the end of the note that she intended to pray for them every night and every morning, and she wished that they would remember that they were very much beloved over here at home.

Wasn't it a nice idea? Of course, she didn't have any party or any presents, either—she gave that all up when she asked her mother's consent. And she did more than that—she told some of her friends about it, and they made a club and they called it the Party Club, and when people hear of it they think at once of satin slippers and pink ribbons and dresses of mull, and floating curls and trim braids and girlish shoulders crisply adorned, of soft lights and bright flowers and music, of the dreamy odors of a waltz or the gay thrum of the two-step, but that isn't the kind of party the Party Club is thinking about—far from it.

The Joy of Giving
Isn't it pleasant to imagine just how some lonely boy will feel when he gets that birthday package that he's waited for so long, and tied with pretty ribbons with a little letter in it written especially to him from some one across the sea here at home who wishes him well and is proud of him and wants to tell him about it?

Maybe he hasn't any one to write him birthday letters—perhaps he never got one in his life before, and it isn't at all probable that he might be lying very ill or desperately wounded in the hospital. What a pleasure it will be for him to bring the little packet to him and see his hollow eyes grow bright and his wan face lighten with a smile.

I am glad Sweet Sixteen sent the birthday package to France. I don't believe she missed the party at home or the presents at all—do you?

One Soldier in a Box.
Little Edna Hibbard—
Efficient.
A Billion-Passenger City.
The Car as Ribbon Clerk.
By Arthur Brisbane

This is written in a Pullman car, as the Pennsylvania Railroad train stops for a moment at Baltimore. On the platform outside the window in a box of rough pine, is the body of an American soldier.

An American flag is stretched across the top of the wooden box, a wreath of flowers with red, white and blue ribbon is at the head, and at the foot a bundle wrapped with newspaper containing a few of the soldier's effects, and a small volume of imitation leather, held together with a piece of string. On top of the value is the soldier's military hat, soldier's blouse with the dead body of the boy's mother.

Inside the box lies Otto Bartelt, late of Company I, Twelfth Battalion, U. S. Infantry. He died in the service of his country in camp in Delaware. He is going home, to his mother's home, No. 39 Fremont avenue, Baltimore.

Beside the coffin stands a soldier in full uniform, with cartridge belt, and revolver. He is E. J. Shaw, of the same company, escorting the dead comrade. Shaw, of Irish descent, and Otto Bartelt was of German blood.

"He was a good soldier. I only have to think how his family will feel. We have got to take our chances in a war," says Shaw. "It is, indeed, not pleasant to think how the family will feel, when the boy's mother will feel, when the mother who always was so kind, so young and strong, is brought back to her dead.

"Thousands of American mothers, unfortunately, must feel the mother of Otto Bartelt feels now. The sight of that coffin, the bundle wrapped in newspaper, and the value tied with a string, representing the worldly possessions of a man dead in his country's service, should soothe the mother's heart, but she must give back to her half of the millions that the war has taken.

New York is a "billion-passenger city." What a blessed thing it would be if street car owners could give us representation or protest by the people, the passengers of a billion-passenger city.

New York's street car lines, on above and below the ground, report that they carried last year, for the first time, more than one billion passengers.

Thirtynine million passengers more than the year before.

One billion passengers pay to the street car companies, in nickels, fifty million dollars annually. Please observe that if you save them these, mount up rapidly.

The New York company announces its desire, on account of wages, to add one or two cents to the price of each ride. An increase of two cents in the fare would mean an additional net income for the street car company of twenty million dollars a year. An increase of one cent would mean a net income of ten million dollars a year. This shows how profitable it is for public service companies to control the public purse, can also how important it is for the public to control and own the monopolies whose value and own created by the gift of public streets, and increased by the increasing birth rate.

The young Armenian girl, whose story was told in the last issue, is now being taken to the hands of the murdering Kurds and Turks who have been in Cilicia since last Sunday's massacre. She is a very pretty girl, with long dark hair and a smile that has been through many hardships and the awful cruelty of the only Christian Armenian girl to escape.
